

The Earth Is a Spaceship

This song probably needs little explanation. It is simply about the most incredible spaceship in the entire universe—the only one we know of with emerald forests, rolling rivers, and azure oceans, with redwoods and roses, eagles and whales, even wood ticks. So far as we know there is no other barren rock or gaseous glob within a thousand light years that can support so much as an amoeba, let alone so wondrous a being as a human.

The earth is a wonderland, an infinitely rare and precious gem hung in the vastness of space. It has everything we need to survive and rejoice in our journey, if we simply treat it with the very same care and respect we'd give to any other spaceship on which our lives depended.
