

What They're Saying about Douglas Wood

Los Angeles Times

This Minnesota wilderness guide writes music, books and essays, sings, plays guitar, banjo, violin and piano, and teaches about the environment. Shaping this multi-faceted life is his profound love and respect for nature. His EarthSongs are in turn poetic, jaunty, humorous and thoughtful; his best selling Old Turtle is an eloquent parable for adults and children, deceptively simple, about reverence for the earth and all its creatures — including humankind.

Kansas City Star

— wilderness guide, environmental musician, acclaimed author — his love of the earth pulses through all his work.

Minnesota Monthly

Douglas Wood is a Minnesota renaissance man - best selling author/singer/songwriter/artist/teacher/wilderness guide. He leads readers and listeners on a journey of self-discovery...helping them to understand themselves and the world around them.

Des Moines Register

He transports an audience back into the fabric of nature. Folksinger, author, naturalist, psychologist, woodsman, Douglas Wood never stops guiding.

Inland Sea Magazine

Canoe Country Poet Avatar, Douglas Wood brings us lessons from the trees and speaking rocks themselves. He knows the boreal land of glacial striations, scooped-out fresh lakes, river and rock, wintergreen and loon, and solitude. He finds his soul there, and brings us along for the slow, deep ride.

Lakeshore Wellness Conference

Extraordinary! Equal parts, top grade entertainment and messages of substance, one of the best keynoters we've ever had.

Jim Dale Vickery, author of Wilderness Visionaries

Poet author, musician, wilderness guide, pure romantic, Douglas Wood is all of these. His is an aspiring vision, perhaps a North Woods rendition of Kahlil Gibran.

Joseph Cornell, author of Sharing Nature with Children

Douglas Wood's message resonates with the great truths of nature. He reminds us of our unity with all of life.

Texas All Well Conference

Doug talked, sang, and charmed his way into our hearts. We want him back!
